Excerpt: .to compare the direct measurements of the heat output with the values calculated from the gaseous metabolism. For this particular experiment, therefore, the values obtained by indirect calorimetry are also recorded, although it should again be emphasized that the values for the indirect heat are not given for the specific purpose of noting the increment above the basal value but simply to obtain the general trend of the metabolism from period to period for comparison with the direct measurements of the heat production. Aside from the first period, in which the computed heat is 16 calories higher than the determined, all the values found by direct calorimetry are higher than those computed. The average for the entire experiment shows a discrepancy between the values obtained by the two methods of approximately 6 per cent. While this discrepancy appears very large in the light of the recent exact work of Du Bois, it should be remembered that this particular calorimeter had a very large volume and was primarily designed for 24-hour experiments. The lack of agreement between the direct and indirect calorimetry in these short periods is, therefore, not so incongruous as at first sight appears. results obtained are given in table 102. Practically the entire increment in the carbon-dioxide production was found in the first hour. The oxygen consumption showed almost no increase after the ingestion of the carbohydrate; in fact, there was a total decrease of 5 grams. The slight increase in the...
